Council Deals with Many Major And Minor Issues at Last Meeting

by Diane Oberg

Much of the attention at the February 14 regular meeting of the Greenbelt City Council focused on county and state government as the city's school board representative sought council support for restoring education funds cut by the governor. Other concerns were state and county legislation that would, among other things, permit the removal of signs illegally placed along state highways; allow counties and cities to impose a fee on stores using disposable plastic bags; and require apartments and condominiums to provide recycling services for their residents.

Council also agreed to explore participating in a program to disperse medications from a federal stockpile in case of an epidemic or other emergency.

School Cuts

Greenbelt's representative on the Prince George's County Board of Education, (and Greenbelt resident) Peggy Higgins, updated council on the school's budget for Fiscal Year 2012, which starts July 1. The school system faces a $155 million budget gap between identified needs and expected revenue.

School Superintendent William R. Hite, Jr. has proposed cuts of $70 million, she said, including freezing staff pay (both cost of living and step increases), increasing employee and retiree contributions to health insurance costs by 5 percent, cutting 250 non-teaching positions previously funded by federal stimulus funds, furloughing executive-level staff for three days and many other steps.

Higgins sought council's support for restoring $20.8 million in state funds the governor has proposed eliminating to balance the state budget. She noted that when the school board's budget is adopted, the county will not yet know how much in state funds they will receive. If the funds are received, she said, the school board could maintain current class sizes.

Without those funds, however, class sizes would increase. Higgins said the school board was scheduled to vote on the budget on February 24 but that action could be delayed. In any case, she said, the school board must adopt the budget no later than February 28.

Council unanimously adopted the motion by Councilmember Leta Mach to send a letter to Governor Martin O'Malley, asking him to consider restoring the $20.8 million in state aid to Prince George's County schools and suggesting he consider other sources of revenue, such as increasing taxes on liquor.

Mach accepted Mayor Judith Davis' suggestion to incorporate a request that the funds be used only for school-based purposes rather than to offset central-office reductions.

Medical Readiness

Greenbelt's Community Resource Advocate Christal Batey briefed council on the county health department's "Closed Point of Dispensing Initiative." This program, she said, was designed by the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention to provide the capability of dispersing medications from the federal stockpile within 24 hours in case of an emergency.

The state and county governments would then be responsible for getting the medications to the city. Greenbelt would be responsible for identifying distribution sites and providing staffing. The county health department would provide training and supplies, as well as training on developing a Medical Reserve Corps.

Depending upon the situation, Batey said, medications could be dispersed either through a "push method" or a "pull method." Push would involve pushing the medications out to the community, for example by mailing them; the pull method would pull people into a location to receive medications or immunizations.

The Medical Reserve Corps would include both medical and

Use of Red Light Cameras

Based on a number of safety factors the City of Greenbelt Red Light Camera Program was first implemented in 2002. Since it began the program has resulted in nearly 50,000 citations.

While over the years the number of citations per year has declined, the police believe the procontinues to be a succe deterrent to violations. There was a steady decline in the number of violators between 2002-2006, with the average number per year now at about 4,000. This leveling off on the low end can be considered a good indicator that vehicle operators are complying with the law by stopping for red lights. Due to the number of cameras that were out of service for much of 2010, last year could not be factored into this comparison.

At the program's inception in 2002 the program cited nearly 10,000 violators. This decrease in violations shows the program is an effective public safety tool.

Most of the city's red light violations occurred at northbound Kenilworth Avenue at southbound I-95 (812), with westbound Greenbelt Road at Cherrywood Lane (670) and northbound Kenilworth Avenue at northbound

I-95 seeing the second and third highest level of violations.

As of December 31 a total of four digital red light cameras remained in operation. Three others had been taken out of service.

The currently active camera sites at the end of 2010 were eastbound Greenbelt Road at Mandan Road, westbound Greenbelt Road at Mandan Road and westbound Greenbelt Road at Cherrywood Lane.

The camera sites that were out of service at the end of the year were eastbound Greenbelt Road at Hanover Parkway, northbound Kenilworth Avenue at I-95 north and northbound Kenilworth Avenue at I-95 south.

The camera at Greenbelt Road at Hanover Pkwy was deactivated in January 2008 by the State Highway Administration for reconstruction of the intersection and has not been reactivated.

Both cameras located at northbound Kenilworth Avenue at I-95 were deactivated in June 2010 by the State Highway Administration because of ongoing road construction and bridge repair. Although these cameras captured the greatest number of violators, they are not expected to be put back in service until fall 2011.

Carol Malveaux Is Officer Of Local and State NAACP

by Altoria Bell Ross

Carol Malveaux stands for justice, equality and compassion. The Windsor Green resident is first vice president of the local chapter and state membership chair of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP).

"If anybody says there's no need [for the NAACP]," she said. "They're not knowledgeable. They're not keeping up."

Keeping up has kept the 25-year county resident busy. Malveaux said the local office situated in Largo handles between 20 to 25 calls daily concerning discrimination, along with other concerns. She added hate crimes and groups are growing as well.

"We are an information source to help educate the community about their rights." Malveaux said people who are being discriminated against often don't know how to file a complaint. "We are an avenue."

The 102-year-old civil rights organization boasts a membership

Trina Coore's Passion Is Wellbeing of All Children

by Lavinia Rachal

Greenbelt resident Trina Coore may at first appear a little fatigued, as she deals with a chronic illness that sometimes saps her strength. But after one conversation with the Franklin Park resident, it's clear that nothing will decrease her deep-seated passion for the wellbeing and success of all of the children of Greenbelt, including her own.

Until January, Coore was the secretary of the Greenbelt Boys and Girls Club but had to resign due to her health problems. She says the time she spent as secretary was important because the club helps "nurture kids' athletic capabilities." She says under the direction of Anthony Davis, "they went out there and they sought kids who were disadvantaged."

Coore says the club is also important in its role to, "Give the kids something else to do besides hanging out in the neighborhood." Her 10-year old son is still a member.

Although Coore battles illness every day, she rallies her strength to stay as involved in kids' lives as possible. She's Springhill Lake Elementary School PTA vice president and secretary, is treasurer of Prince George's County Head Start Policy Council and chairperson of the Springhill Lake site.

As a parent dedicated to improving children's lives, she has her own ideas about Black History Month. She feels that a

A Warning

Attempted Fraud Blocked by Lucky Typo

by Sue Krofchik

I never thought it would happen to me. I'm careful. I shred all financial and personal papers, even extra return address labels and anything with my name on it. Then it happened. Attempted fraudulent use of my credit card information. I learned a lot in a two-day span and hope this experience helps protect you.

It was a quiet Saturday evening in the recliner, cat in my lap, newspaper in hand and some program on the television. At 7:26 p.m. my landline phone rang. It was from 1-800 "unavailable." I picked up the receiver and put it back down.

At 7:32 p.m. my cell phone rang (because I had not answered the landline six minutes earlier). Kathryn, claiming to be from USAA Mastercard, was calling to say a hold had been placed on my credit card because of possible fraudulent use. "What do you mean, what are you talking about?" I asked. She would not give me any information until I gave her my phone password.

Aha, I thought, and then said, "Wait a minute. You called me. You have that information. You tell me my password and I'll tell you if you're correct." She would not tell me anything until she could confirm I was the account holder.

This was a Catch-22 situation. So then I asked, "How do I know you're not a crook?" She said I could call the 1-800 number on the back of my credit card and ask for the fraud division, staffed 24/7.

Both of us were adamant about our stubborn positions. Finally I gave her a previous

Correction

Thank you for the beautiful article about my father. I wanted, however, to make one significant correction. The article mentioned that I live with my husband. That is incorrect. I live with my wife, Andrea, in Greenbelt; we're celebrating our anniversary March 9. We are so happy to be raising our two-year old son in this great community.

me that was incorrect, I felt this call was legitimate.

The Crime

Thirty minutes earlier, at 7:09 p.m., someone tried to charge $140.27 at the Target store in Laurel but the charge was rejected because the security code was incorrect. Kathryn asked if it was I using my card. "No. I'm holding it here in my hand and I have only one card."

She said that didn't matter, that they (crooks) have a way to make cards. My card was immediately cancelled and previous charges all confirmed as accurate.

I then called the Laurel Target and spoke with a security officer, giving him the time and amount of the transaction. About a half hour later he confirmed it was on the security tape. I told him I would come in the next day.

Sunday afternoon an Anne Arundel County (AAC) police officer met me and the security guard at Target. For security purposes only police can view tapes. (Viewing the tape would allow a person to figure out where cameras are located.)

I was given a copy of the picture of the crook, however, which had been taken at "2/12/2011 7:12:12 p.m.," six minutes after the attempted fraud, when he was in a different location.

He is a 17-to-20-somethingyear-old, wearing jeans, sweatshirt, parka and dark knit cap. His face is burned in my memory.

The security guard told police and me that he happened to be near the register at the time of this incident. The crook wanted to "load $100 onto a gift card and buy a pair of Sony earphones," the guard said. When the card was rejected by the computer, the young man inserted it three more times before leaving empty-handed. The guard thought something was amiss but had no evidence at the time.

I told the police officer my card had been out of my sight only once, two weeks earlier, at a Greenbelt restaurant. She asked if I charge gas outside at the pump. Yes.

Gas Pump Reader

She explained there is a thin, plastic card called a "reader," which a crook will slide into the credit card slot on an outside gas pump and leave, returning for it in a few hours.

By this time the reader will have recorded credit information for all cards used there in password. Then when she told the interim. This information is then typed into a card-making machine and, presto, out comes a plastic card with someone's credit card information. The crook then either goes shopping or sells it. Such readers are used in banks and are illegally sold by accomplices.

Readers are not too obvious but if a person looks closely inside a credit card slot, something might not look right. Readers are thin enough that they can also be held in the palm and slid over a credit card tape when not in the owner's hand to capture information.

This crime was referred by the police officer to AAC detectives who specialize in money fraud. I was lucky. The crook who stole my credit card information had a typo in the security code when making the fraudulent card. Now when I buy gas, I go inside to swipe my card. Maybe you will too.

Star Party to Be Held Saturday

Everyone is invited to join the Astronomical Society of Greenbelt (ASG) for a star party Saturday evening, February 26 at the City of Greenbelt Observatory at Northway Fields. In addition to the telescope in the observatory, several members will have set up their personal telescopes and binoculars for the enjoyment of all. Observing will begin as soon as it is dark enough, probably around 6:15 p.m. ASG hopes to have the observatory open, although this is dependent on possible weather-related mechanical problems.

Objects to be observed include planet Jupiter and its four Gallilean moons. Several nice star clusters and nebulae may also be seen. ASG members will be available to answer questions and provide advice about getting started in this hobby.

The star party will be cancelled without notice if it is hopelessly cloudy. Attendees are asked to park in the ball field lot, at the bottom of the hill unless bringing a telescope.

Obituaries

Maryam S. Firouzi

On February 10, 2011, Maryam Saniei Firouzi, age 94, died. She was born in Tabriz, Iran, on July 20, 1916. When the 1979 revolution occurred in Iran, her husband Reza Firouzi and son, Parvis Firouzi, were imprisoned and executed because they were members of the Bahá'í Faith and refused to recant their faith.

In 1985 in the midst of intense persecution of all members of the Bahá'í Faith she, along with her other son, Jamshid, widowed daughter-in-law Kianeah Mahlooji and two grandchildren escaped the country and found refuge in another country where they remained until she received permission from the United States government to transfer to this country.

In February 1986 she arrived in Greenbelt and had been a resident here since then, living in the home of her daughter and son-in-law.

A significant accomplishment for her was to study and learn to speak the English language. The Prince George's County Literacy Council assisted her by providing a loving and caring tutor, Cecilia Maloney. Upon completion of the class Mrs. Firouzi attended a special ceremony for students completing this study. She honored her teacher with an eloquent speech in English.

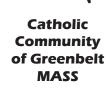

Her next accomplishment was successfully studying for and completing the requirements for the United States citizenship examination. With help of her granddaughter Dr. Nooshin Golshani and Mrs. Maloney on November 11, 1997, Mrs. Firouzi became a United States citizen.

Throughout the last 25 years she remained a devoted member of and participant in the Greenbelt Bahá'í community. She was elected to and served as a member of the Greenbelt Spiritual Assembly (the local Bahá'í governing body). Throughout these years she remained a staunch believer and participant in Bahá'í activities.

She is survived by her four children: Firoozeh Sturdivant of Greenbelt, Faegheh Naraghi of California, Faezheh Inayati of Argentina, Jamshid Firouzi of Greenbelt and three sons-in-law and one daughter-in-law. Ten grandchildren, five great-grandchildren and a myriad of other relatives and loving friends also survive her.

Funeral services were held on February 13, 2011. She was interred at Parklawn Cemetery in Rockville nonmedical personnel. Nonmedical staff would be responsible for tasks such as handling registrations and paperwork. The CDC would determine when to use the Medical Reserve Corps and the dispersing sites.

Batey said the federal government can distribute medications from its stockpile to the state within 12 hours. The state would then push to the county, which would be responsible for dispersement. If Greenbelt joined this initiative, it would work under the direction of the county health department and the Medical Reserve Corps.

Batey said the city had so far only received an overview from the health department. If Greenbelt is interested in participating, the county would provide more information. Council unanimously approved a motion to support Greenbelt's participation.

75th Anniversary

David Mills, co-chair of the 75th Anniversary Committee, briefed council on initial plans for the celebration. In Report #2-11, the committee sought council approval for $3,500 from the $7,000 budgeted. In addition to covering costs for the logocontest prize and a luncheon last September with guests from sister city Greendale, Wisc., the funds would be used for the initial order of commemorative items, banners, stationery, advertising and miscellaneous expenses.

In Report #1-11, the committee reported on its initial planning. The committee has identified a number of ideas in a brainstorming session and is working with the Greenbelt Association for the Visual Arts, the Greenbelt Museum, the Greenbelt Concert Band and the Greenbelt theater.

Planned events include a kickoff as early as January or February 2012, a museum lecture series, a symposium on Sustaining Greenbelt's Legacy in May 2012, a celebration weekend in June, a community picnic in August, a second celebration weekend in October and a closing ceremony in December. Nine subcommittees are in place, Mills said. Each will seek help, he added, including recreation department staff and acquaintances of committee members.

Although Mills said he understands that $7,000 was budgeted for the anniversary, he does not expect further requests for funds beyond the $3,500 now requested.

Council unanimously approved the request for funds and use of the councilmembers' signatures on committee letterhead.

Legislation

Council unanimously approved supporting County Bill 1-2011, which would clarify the language in a zoning bill passed last year regarding which actions by municipalities could be appealed to the District Council (the county council when acting on zoning matters). Last year's bill had expanded appeal rights to actions over which municipalities had authority since 1997. The new bill would limit such appeals to non-conforming use authority.

Council also agreed to support the following state legislation (votes were unanimous except where noted):

Senate Bill 111/House Bill 179, which would require owners or managers of apartments/condominiums with 10 or more units to provide recycling for residents by October 2015:

SB 176/HB167, which would establish a Maryland Electric Vehicle Infrastructure Council to promote the use of electric vehicles;

HB 289/SB 410, which would enable Prince George's County or any municipality therein to impose a fee on stores that use disposable plastic bags. The city council had sought this legislation as part of its 2011 legislative

HB 6 - which would permit counties and municipalities to remove and destroy political signs left along state highways if not removed within five days of an election. Approved on a 6-1 vote, although councilmembers recognized that if passed, it could be overturned on first-amendment grounds.

HB 289/SB 410 - would permit county and municipal governments to remove illegal signs along state highways and impose fines of up to $25 per sign. Greenbelt currently has authority to remove these signs but cannot impose penalties. The city has supported similar legislation for three years, according to written comments by Assistant City Manager David Moran.

Council unanimously approved sending a letter to the county executive supporting his ethics reform efforts.

Other Actions

Council unanimously approved a motion directing staff to issue a request for audit services for the Fiscal Year 2011 audit. The current firm has been auditing the city's books for six years. The city manager said that the current firm has "performed satisfactorily." He declined invitations to

As part of its consent agenda (adopted without discussion), council referred to the Community Relations Advisory Board the issue of whether the city should commemorate the 10th anniversary of the September 11 attacks.

Advisory Committees

Council accepted the resignations of Joyce Griffin from the Advisory Committee on Environmental Sustainability, Leah Warner from the Senior Citizens Advisory Committee, Amitiyah Hyman and C. Jenise Williamson from the Arts Advisory Board, and Anna Socrates from the Greenbelt Middle School Task Force.

Council also appointed Shane Wisdom and Sharmaine Koenig to the Greenbelt Middle School Task Force and David Whaples to the Board of Appeals and reappointed Coleen Chernikoff to the Employee Relations Board and Darrin Washington to the Public Safety Advisory Committee.

The NAACP also conducts training on mobilizing people, informing citizens of their rights and making leaders. Of youth training she said, "We need them to be able to carry the torch."

Malveaux, a Chicago native, and her husband Murray, married for 35 years, have led youth groups within and outside the NAACP. In fact, Malveaux said youth groups started the political forums in the county in the 1980s. She also has frequented schools teaching social skills to elementary through high school students and interview techniques to the Baltimore group, College for Kids, sponsored by the National Congress of Women.

Malveaux also has provided opportunities to help youth in HOPE, Help Our Progenies Excel, to become well rounded as well as trained. She also helped people find jobs as a board member with the former Combined Communities in Action once based at Capital Plaza Mall in Landover Hills. The United Black Fund also sponsored the project.

In Prince George's County, Malveaux has worked with the fire and police advisory boards, graduated from Leadership of Prince George's and chaired the county's former Federal Emergency Management Agency office. In Greenbelt, Malveaux is co-chair for the 2012 Labor Day Festival Committee. "She has a strong love for humanity," her husband said.

Malveaux's foray into social and political awareness began with her mother, Katie Payne Levi, who was a community worker and advocate under the administration of the late Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daly. At 16, Malveaux was a part of a group of 20 teenagers called the Safari Girls who visited Monrovia, Liberia, to examine their African roots and seek understanding of their culture. On their way, the Safari Girls were hosted at the embassy in Paris by Sargent Shriver who gave each girl a bottle of perfume - Malveaux's first. Despite the sweet scent of civic and social success, Malveaux also has experienced personal loss. She is a 9/11 Pentagon survivor.

On the morning of September 11, Malveaux was preparing to attend a meeting at the place where the nose of the plane found its resting place. Although not hurt at the time, she is combatting a disease contracted by breathing the fumes emitted by the crash. Undeterred, Malveaux, who at the time was given 18 to 24 months to live, keeps marching forward.

"There's a purpose for me being here," she said. "I'm not going to let that charge go. I'm on a mission from God."

month is not enough to educate children about the contributions of African Americans. "Why haven't we integrated this within our curriculum, within our society as a whole," she asks. "Why haven't we incorporated the Frederick Douglasses, the Harriet Tubmans into the history lessons for our kids?"

To supplement what she may not glean from the school's curriculum, Coore has begun to have her son read a book about black history and summarize it for her. His current favorite is one which features Charles Drew, the African American physician who was a pioneer in the research and development of blood preservation.

Obstacles

Coore herself has managed to face and overcome obstacles that might have kept her from achieving success. She grew up in the Barry Farms section of Southeast, D.C., which in the last few decades has been plagued by violence and poverty. But Coore says the influence of her blended family especially that of her exstepfather's mother, guided her to do more. She became the first in her immediate family to attend college. "I'm from Barry Farms. It didn't make me. It didn't

As the first female African American president of the student council of Montgomery College, Coore knows what it's like to break racial barriers. She faced a critical decision during her tenure – whether to allow Louis Farrakhan to speak at the school. Coore decided it would not be a good idea. "If I let him speak, I'd have to open the door to everybody. You have to be careful of who you let in the door. Though it was controversial, she has no regrets. "As a president I had to be fair to the student body as a whole and I definitely wasn't going to have the KKK come in there.'

She went on to get an undergraduate degree and two masters degrees from Marymount University in Arlington, Va.

Her own obstacles are part of what motivates her to continue nurturing her own children and to be instrumental in nurturing the children of the community. "Kids don't ask to be here. We bring them into this world. We need to take care of them." She has her own goals for the kids of Greenbelt. "I want them to be leaders, to develop a sense of

African American Foods at Riversdale

On Sunday, February 27 from noon to 3:30 p.m. there will be a free special seasonal program on 19th century traditional African American foods offered by the Riversdale Kitchen Guild.

Participants can see these traditional dishes made on the open hearth by costumed interpreters using period cookware. There will also be a discussion of Adam Plummer's profit-generating produce sales. Riversdale, completed in 1807, was home to Rosalie and George Calvert, descendant of the fifth Lord Baltimore. The Calverts owned several slaves, including Adam Plummer. Plummer arrived at Riversdale as a child. His master, Charles Benedict Calvert, allowed Plummer to keep the profits from produce he grew on a part of the estate.

Top 5 Dental Procedures For a Beautiful Smile

Are you self-conscious about your smile? A healthy smile contributes more than just beauty; it is a vital component of good overall health. Every day dental patients ask about options for improving the health and appearance of their smile. The great news is that dental procedures and especially cosmetic dental procedures have improved dramatically over the last 10 to 15 years. As a result, there's an array of affordable options that are no longer a luxury limited to Hollywood celebrities. There are a wide range of choices available for improving the health and appearance of your smile. Speak to a dental professional who can help you determine which dental procedures are best for your needs.

If you've thought about improving your smile, this guide can help you learn about the latest techniques in dentistry and cosmetic dental procedures.

Invisalign Orthodontics is a simple and convenient way to straighten vour teeth. Clear, thin Invisalign trays straighten teeth and correct your bite. Unlike metal braces, almost no one else can tell you are wearing Invisalign. Straightening crooked teeth with Invisalign orthodontics is more comfortable, more convenient, less expensive and usually faster than metal braces. For most adults, treatment time is just under one year. Overall gum and bone health are improved when teeth are properly aligned and fit together with an ideal bite. Straight teeth are not only important for a beautiful smile - they contribute to a healthy smile!

Dental Implants are an excellent example of the benefits of new dental technology and are often an ideal solution for replacing missing teeth. A dental implant serves as a tooth root and anchors a replacement tooth, bridge or denture to your jaw. When dental implants are restored with porcelain crowns, they look, feel and function like natural teeth. One of the most common uses of mini dental implants is stabilization of dentures. Anchoring a denture with one or more dental implants solves problems commonly associated with dentures, including concern and discomfort from loose and poorly fitting dentures.

Teeth Whitening or Bleaching with professional whitening gel often reduces or eliminates tooth stains and discoloration that occurs over time. Patients have great success with the Zoom and DayWhite custom take home whitening tray systems. The results can be achieved quickly and you can enjoy whiter teeth for a long time.

Porcelain Veneers are a thin layer of porcelain applied to the front of teeth. Veneers allow dentists to change the color, size and shape of teeth for a more aesthetic smile. Porcelain veneers are an excellent option for people with tooth discoloration or heavy stains that do not lighten with professional tooth whitening.

Dental veneers are custom made. The thickness of the veneer and the amount of tooth reduction necessary varies with each patient's specific needs.

Crowns are used to cover or "cap" damaged teeth starting at the gum line. In addition to strengthening the dammore attractive.

aged tooth, a crown can be used to improve the tooth's appearance, shape or alignment. In the past, porcelain crowns were fused to metal and were less natural looking. Today, all-porcelain crowns are more durable, comfortable and much

Principal Leaving GMS Leaves Gap at School

In a letter sent home with Greenbelt Middle School (GMS) students on February 11, Principal Sharon Porter announced she is leaving to care for her mother in North Carolina. The following is the text of the letter:

Dear GMS Parents and Students,

Many of you know that I am originally from North Carolina and have been in Prince George's County Public School System for over 15 years. I became the proud principal of Greenbelt Middle School (GMS) July 2010. What you may not know is that I have been traveling for the past five months to North Carolina on the weekends to be of assistance to my mother.

Due to the nature of this hardship, I have made the decision to resign from Prince George's County Public Schools effective February 25, 2011. While I will miss the students, staff, parents and community of Greenbelt, I believe that this is the best decision for me and my family.

An acting principal will complete the remainder of the 2010-2011 school year. The process for hiring a new principal for the upcoming school year will begin this spring.

I would like to personally thank you for your support. Greenbelt Middle is a better place because of your dedication and commitment. I know with the same support, the acting principal and next year's newly hired principal can only continue to improve the educational program. Please continue to work with our faculty/ staff and PTA in increasing student achievement at GMS.

Thank you for the opportunity to serve you.

Sharon H. Porter, Principal

Local Schools to Celebrate Black History Month

by Lavinia Rachal

Most Greenbelt public schools have found Black History Month to be an important way to explore African Americans' contributions to the past, present and future.

Springhill Elementary will present an assembly on Monday, February 28. The students will re-enact the incident in which Rosa Parks would not give up her seat on a Montgomery, Alabama, bus with the message, "Rosa sat so Martin could march, Martin marched so Barack could run and Barack ran so our children can soar." There will also be a living museum, a dance performance and a musical tribute from the 40s to the present.

At Eleanor Roosevelt High School, members of the Black Student Association will be performing a student written and directed program about the Harlem Renaissance. The tribute will be performed in school on Thursday, March 3. Black Student Association sponsor and business teacher Karen Green says the president of the Black Student Association wrote the piece because she "has an interest in the time period and wanted to entice the group." Green says the era offers a key opportunity for performance because it encompasses everything, "poetry, dance, writing."

Greenbelt Elementary has programs planned for almost every discipline. Music teacher Dara Case says, "My students are working on a jazz unit. Students in grades 5 and 6 are learning how the pieces (slavery, indentured servants, Jim Crow laws) start coming together in this one unique place, New Orleans."

According to fourth grade teacher Stephanie Katz, "We are reading small biographies on African Americans and compiling them into a book. At the end of February students will pick their favorite and do a culminating athome project about their person."

First graders at Greenbelt will study Ruby Bridges, who, as a first grader herself, integrated New Orleans elementary schools.

Volksmarchers' Black History Month Walk

by Marjorie Gray

At 9:30 a.m. on Saturday, February 19, my husband Jim and I left Vansville Community Center in Beltsville for an 11K Volksmarch celebrating African American History Month.

Signs with photos and historical notes were posted along the

The first sign marked the site of Muirkirk Furnace and Iron Company where Ben, Shadrach and Meshach Conway and many others had been employed in the early 1920s. We guessed that the Conway Street we walked on was named after their family. Next was the site of an early school, now American Legion

Our checkpoint (where walk monitors stamped our registration cards) was at Abraham Hall, formerly Rebecca Lodge #6, Benevolent Sons and Daughters of Abraham, now a museum in the community of Rossville. One house built in the late 1800s also remains in use and was marked with a sign out front, as were sites of several other homes and Queens Chapel Methodist Episcopal Church.

A steady stream of walkers followed the route, with starttimes ranging from 9 a.m. to 1 I were married and moved to p.m. Some opted for the 6K route. We were glad we did the 11K, however, although one loop through a new area off Cedarhurst was confusing according to the directions. Fighting the wind also made the walk seem more strenuous than usual. On the home stretch, smoke from what we later heard was a big fire near Laurel stung our eyes and made it uncomfortable to breathe.

Located on Old Muirkirk Road, Abraham Hall served as a social hall, house of worship and school. The hall served the historic African American community of Rossville.

Shortly after my husband and Greenbelt in 1998, we joined Freestate Happy Wanderers, not realizing there was also a Greenbelt American Volksmarch Association club. It doesn't matter, however, which club sponsors the events or even if one is a member. All are welcome. We have enjoyed year-round walks as well as one-day events in many neighborhoods and look forward to many more in the months and years to come. Every walk is an adventure.
